

Ádám Csányi

About me

My name is Ádám Csányi, I am 23 years old. I am a second-year student at the University of Szeged, majoring in industrial engineering and informatics. Before university, I spent two years studying software development and testing, where I gained deeper knowledge of Python and JavaScript. During this time, we also worked on an exam project using Node.js and the React framework. For this, we used a MongoDB database and also covered MySQL during the course. I was responsible for the backend, but I also contributed to the frontend. The project was developed and managed using GitHub, utilizing version control and collaboration tools. I would describe myself as reliable, enthusiastic, and kind. I have a strong desire to learn, so I am always eager to improve my skills.
